

The lure of the saddle at White Sulphur Springs. On the left is a riding party crossing Howard River. Left to right: Mrs. William Lewis, Mr. A. G. Stratton, Miss Marie Hersey, Miss Marjorie Cowan, Mrs. A. G. Stratton and Mrs. Lawrence Lewis. On the right is Mrs. Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia out for her morning canter.

James Colby Colgate, president of the Board of Trustees, delivering the charter and key to George Barton Cutten, new president of Colgate University, at the inauguration exercises. Underwood & Underwood.

Secretary of the Navy Denby goes out of his way to kneel on a wet pavement and feed "Pete," the White House squirrel, which threatens to rival "Laddie Boy" in the affections of members of the Cabinet. Pacific & Atlantic.

Lady Astor at home in the grounds of historic Cliveden with her two children, Michael and John. International.

He won his bet. Jack Shalk, aviation stunt man, wagered Earl Daugherty, aviator, that he could stand on the wing of a plane at full speed and hold a chair in his teeth. The photo shows Shalk going through with his performance. No casualties. Pacific & Atlantic.